The Editor and the Cobbler

One day an editor, hard at work trying to devise a plati to make his delinquent subscribers pay their dues, was called upon by a shoemaker, who dropped in to give the editor some hints on running a newspaper. The editor, overjoyed at the opportunity, gave the man his best cane-seat chair; honored him with a cigar, and listened attentively to what he had to say. Quoth the shoemaker, as he lit the weed,-"Your paper needs a hundred imroved features. You do not grasp the topics of the day by the right handle; you don't set the locals in the right type; your telegraph news is to thin; even the paper itself is poorly manufactured, not thick enough, and is too chalky white; you don't run cuough 'matter,' and what you do run ain't of the right sort; your idea on Diseatablishment is wrong, and in regard to 'Wee Colin' you stand bad. I tell you these things because I want to see you succeed. I tell you as a friend. I don't take your paper myself, but I see it once in a while; and as a paper is a public affair I suppose I have as good a right to criticize it as anybody: If a man wants to give me advice, I let him; I'm glad to have him, in fact.' "That's exactly it," said the editor; kindly. "I always had a dim idea of my short-comings, but never had them so clearly and convincingly set forth as by you. It is impossible to express my gratitude for the trouble you have taken, not only to find out these facts, but to point them out also. Some people, knowing all these perhaps nearly On motion the Clerk of the Board as well as you do, are mean enough to was instructed to procure twenty Gila keep them to themselves. Your suggestions come in a most appropriate time. I have wanted some one to lear on, as it were, for some weeks. Keep your eye on the paper and when you see a weak spot come up." The shoemaker left, happy to know that his suggestions had been received with such a Christian spirit.

Next day, just as the cobbler was finishing a boot, the editor came in; and, picking up the mate, remarked,-"I want to tell you how that boot strikes me. In the first place, the leather is poor; the stitches in the sole are wide apart, and the uppers too near the edge; those uppers will go to pieces in two weeks. It's all wrong, my friend, putting poor leather in the heels, and smoothing it over with grease and lamp-black. Everybody complains of your boots; they don't last; the legs are too short, the toes too narrow, the instep too high. How On the first day of January 18-, the County of Gila, in the Territory you can have the 'gall' to charge 22s. for such boots beats me. Now I tell of Arizona, will pay to the bearer, at you this because I like to see you succeed. Of course I don't know any more about shoemaking than you do about a newspaper, but still I take an interest in you, because you are so well-disposed toward me.
